Graham Knuttel is an Irish artist with an international reputation, represented in many important collections in Europe and the USA as well as many public collections worldwide. Graham Knuttel is known for his paintings and for his large, wooden, mechanical, animated sculptures. Some of his collectors include Sylvester Stallone, Eddie Jordan, Christy Moore, Colin Farrell, Michael Stipe, Bill Gates, Joanna Lumley, to name but a few.

He is a prolific worker spending up to 15 hours in his studio every day. He works from first light until darkness and beyond. His paintings represent the human predicament as he has seen it: his figures appear in an urban landscape and he tries to use colour and form to express the emotion of his figures.

The characters in this painting have no homes to go to. They live and work on the shady streets, and meet occasionally in a basement bar to share a game of chance. Afterwards they will go their separate ways, one a winner.
